

Eleanor Stein is the New York State Public Service Commission Administrative Law Judge presiding over the Energy Efficiency Portfolio Standard proceeding; she also presided over New York's Renewable Portfolio Standard proceeding until 2004. From 2004-2006 Judge Stein was visiting associate professor at Albany Law School teaching transnational environmental law, telecommunications law, and other subjects; she is currently an adjunct professor teaching the law of climate change. She has published and lectured on climate change and renewable energy.