

David Hepinstall has been Executive Director of the Association for Energy Affordability, Inc. (AEA) in New York City, since 1993. AEA is a not-for-profit training, technical support and energy services organization whose mission is to use energy efficiency to maintain affordable and healthy housing for low and moderate-income families and communities. David has over 25 years of direct experience designing, developing and managing innovative public and nonprofit programs serving energy affordability, community development and education needs in low-income communities. He is a member of NYSERDA's System Benefits Charge Advisory Group, the NYC Mayor's Energy Policy Task Force, and the Lt. Governor's Renewable Energy Task Force, and has been an active participant in electric and gas proceedings before the NY PSC for the past ten years.
